

Character Sheet

When a new character is created, the player should start a new entry in the character's corresponding character sheet notepad. As players play through a campaign, they will need to keep notes on what experience, gold, items, perks, and available ability cards they have in their deck by using this character sheet.

A CHARACTER SHEET INCLUDES:

- A space to name the character a. Every character should have a name. Be creative.
- A space to mark the current level of the character b. As characters gain experience, they will increase in level (see Leveling Up on pp. 44–45 for details). The total amount of experience needed is written below each level c.
- Spaces to keep detailed notes on the amount of experience d and gold e a character has.
- A space to track all the items a character has in their possession f.
- A perk list specific to the character class g. Whenever a character gains a perk (see Additional Perks on p. 44 for details), they mark the one on the list they want.
- A space for additional notes h. If players would like to track progress on other aspects of their character, they can do so here. This space also includes a track for checkmarks i attained through battle goals.
